VOL. X — RICHMOND, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 9, 1914 — No. 2

Governor Johnson Finally Decides

Will Again Be a Candidate For Office of State's High Executive.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 9.—Governor Johnson has decided to enter the race for governor and there is general rejoicing among the progressives of the state, who were no doubt becoming anxious in regard to the political situation with Johnson slated for the U. S. senate.

Governor Johnson no doubt aspired to the senate, but after due deliberation and the overwhelming sentiment from all parts of the state, he wisely submitted to the will of the people.

There is no candidate of any political organization, nor any combination of political parties that can place a candidate in the field who has the strengh of Governor Johnson. His administration has given the people the courage and self-reliance to rally to his standard, for they know with Hiram Johnson in the governor's chair, the common people will have say in the administration of public affairs through their representative and servant.

John M. Eshleman says he will continue on in the good work, and that he aspires to no office other than the one he now occupies, that of president of the railroad commission.

With these two strong men continuing in office, California will prosper and grow and the people will be content in securing their services another term.

Industrial Commission To Start Ball Rolling

President George S. Wall of the Richmond Industrial Commission, has called a meeting of the commission to be held in San Francisco January 14, the following matters will be taken up: The construction of the state highway, carrying the inner harbor project along, widening Twenty-third street, establishing ferry service between Richmond and Marin county, and exhibits for Richmond at the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915.

Shattuck & Edinger Fitting Up Office Accommodations Near Tunnel.

The firm of Shattuck & Edinger, who have the contract for building the Richmond municipal tunnel, have leased a portion of the Hotel Maxwell near the Santa Fe tunnel and near the proposed city tunnel for the accommodation of their office force. The machinery to be used in the excavation work is arriving, which means that work will soon begin in earnest.

The firm did the work on the Contra Costa county tunnel, and completed it in a year's time. It is estimated that the work for Richmond tunnel can be finished by 1915.

Richmond Lumber Company Expands

The Tilden & Eakle Lumber Co. of Richmond closed an important deal this week, taking over the business of the Berkeley Lumber Co., located on the waterfront on West University avenue. The purchase price is represented by six figures. The capital stock of the consolidated or reorganized company is $200,000.

Mr. Tilden, the general manager, will divide his time between the two cities, which means that the business of the big consolidated lumber plant will be conducted in a way that will keep apace with the rapid growth of the east bay cities and especially that of Richmond.

Charles Lamb of the Sunset Lumber Co, formerly with the Puget Sound Co., is to be manager.

F. H. Hauge of Los Angeles, traveling passenger agent for the Santa Fe, has been appointed to take charge of the Oakland office.

New Currency System Will Be Great Benefit

California Will Be Hit Less Hard Than Many Other States.

A Terminal representative had the pleasure of meeting the Kansas City financier, J. L. Lombard, well known throughout the middle west as one of the conservative bankers and business men, at Hotel Oakland, the other day. In speaking of the present situation in regard to the currency question, Mr. Lombard said:

"California will be hit less hard tarn other states in the present temporary financial depression. The country will soon experience an inflation, and California because of her natural bounty will not feel the depression very keenly."

"I am out here on a business deal, and when consummated means the loaning of large sums of money to the farmers of California."

The trip east was abandoned, Mr. Knott going at once to the bedside of his mother, who did not recover sufficiently to recognize her son. One half the county apportionment is placed to the credit of the teachers' salary fund. The library fund is so computed as to allow each district the maximum allowed by law. The apportionment for Richmond, with 49 teachers and an average daily attendance of 1562 is $23,503.40.

Stock Reducing Sale

Commenced January 2nd.

FOR the last three months we have been looking for a warehouse site in order to have additional storage, but have not yet arranged for a suitable location. Furniture which we have ordered for our spring trade is arriving every day and we find we have not enough room, in spite of the fact that our sales for the past few months have been the largest in the history of the store. Instead of paying the railroods for storage or being fined for not unloading our freight promptly, we believe we can move out this stock by making genuine substantial reductions in our selling prices, ranging from 15 to 40 per cent.

MEASURE TO GO ON 1914 BALLOT

Initiative and Referendum acts That Are to Be Voted on at Next State Election

Sacramento.—The initiative and referendum measures which will go upon the 1914 ballot for decision by the people have been compiled by Secretary of State Jordan's office. The initiative measures will be those providing for state-wide prohibition, making only taxpayers qualified electors at bond elections, the universal eight-hour law, the abolishment of the poll tax, and the Australian method of transferring and establishing property title similar to the Torrens land law of Australia.

The proposed Torrens act would have the effect of eliminating the necessity of abstracts of title and, its proponents claim, would simplify the transfer and title of all real estate and land.

Bills proposing the enactment of the Torrens law have been introduced at every session of the legislature for more than 20 years. At the 1913 session a bill passed both houses, but was refused approval by Governor Johnson.

Enough signatures have been secured to put the abolishment of the death penalty upon the ballot, but a decision from the Attorney-General is necessary before the legality of these names are decided.

The referendum measures to go upon the ballot are the redlight abatement and injunction law, the blue sky law, the non-sale of fish and game and the water commission act.

At midnight the men congregated in the bar of the Pleasant Valley Hotel and telephoned the detectives to come down. The latter refused. The crowd then charged the stairway, but Clark beat them to the room and persuaded the crowd to disperse.

FUDGE AND WHIPPED CREAM

Delicacy Rich Enough to Tax the Digestive Powers of All but the Very Young.

Fudge with whipped cream is a delicacy rich enough to appeal to the palate of the most exacting boarding-school girl.

First, measure out a pound and a half of brown sugar—three cups—into a saucepan, and add to this a cup of milk, half a cup of butter, a pinch of salt and a half square of chocolate and cook the mixture till it hardens when tried in cold water.

Take from the fire and beat with vigor for three minutes. Have ready a half pint of cream beaten to a froth and add this to the mixture. Next add a little vanilla for flavoring and chopped walnut meats if desired. Proceed as with the usual fudge, beating till almost stiff and cooling on buttered tins.

STANDING PAT

It was the day before the junior prom at the Blakemore. The campus was a-thrill with expectancy. Dress makers were sewing far into the night; express companies were working overtime under florists' orders; drug clerks were rapidly exhausting their stocks of wrinkle eradicators, eye brighteners, miracle-working bleaches and other alleged aids to beauty.

As Leila Evans, Gladys Donohue and Vivian Branford walked arm in arm from Farrell hall to the gymnasium, a young man in a ramshackle buggy with one horse jogged along the graveled driveway. A slouched hat was raised, revealing a massive forehead, a shock of black hair and deep gray eyes.

"Heavens, here he is again! I wish we could have one dance a year from which Bob Kimberley could be excluded," said Gladys petulantly. "I just won't dance with him tomorrow night."

"Nor I," replied Vivian emphatically. "He steps on your toes and tears your dress. He's such a bore. Let's all stand pat and 'cut' him!' Then she added with a sneer: "He's not a college man, you know."

"College does not make m-e-n," said Leila, with hurt eyes and paling cheeks. "Just think if these four or five dances were the only contact with your own kind of people that you had in a year! Just think, if you had driven 40 miles to come to this dance!"

"If there was anything to him, he wouldn't live out on that old run-down place in the hills," said Vivian.

"But that old place has been in the family for 100 years, Vivian," Leila answered, "and Bob's the only one of the boys that will stay there. I admire him for his loyalty and his grit. Aunt Polly and I stopped there one afternoon on our way to Eaton bay. It's a charming old home. There is a great porch that runs all the way round the house. The fireplaces are that huge that—"

"Oh, stop it, Lee. That has nothing to do with his bad dancing. Why doesn't your hero have an automobile instead of that old buggy and pokey horse? I might forgive him for stepping on my toes, then."

Leila made no answer, though a stubborn wrinkle about her mouth indicated that the matter was much upon her mind.

The assemgly hall was a vivid picture of college color and enthusiasm. Leila Evans, with her wavy night-black hair and flashing eyes, was the prettiest girl on the floor. The fellows flocked about her, begging for favor.

"I'm sorry, Clemmy, I can let you have only two dances tonight."

Girard Clement, acknowledged as the best dancer and most desirable bean at Blakemore, bit his lip. "But—"

"But, there are—others," she smiled bewitchingly up into his amazed eyes, and turned to a blonde young man at her left.

"Isn't it a shame, Tony, that I have only the second extra for you?" Others of Blakemore's finest flower had to be content with extras.

A massive brow underneath a shock of dark hair loomed on the outer edge of Leila's circle of admirers. His firm, strongly-knit shoulders made way to the girl's side as easily and unconsciously as a mastiff moves among a convention of fox terriers.

"I do hope you have saved something for me. I haven't been able to get a single dance this evening."

"Yes, I have 12 for you." Blushingly, she added: "That is, I have 12 left—if you care for them."

"Do I dare take them all?"

"Please do." And Bob Kimberley scrawled his signature across every vacant place on her program.

When their first dance came, a murmur went round the hall. Gladys Donohue remarked to Vivian Branford: "Well, that's the only dance he'll get. All the girls but Lee will stand pat."

Bob Kimberley did not step on Leila's toes nor did he tear her dress, but it was an effort to follow the music with him. When the dance was over, he bent low over her. "It's perfectly gorgeous out under the trees. There's a moon, and it's very warm and—there is something I want to tell you. Will you come?"

As they walked through a lane of poplars, the man continued: "I've always had faith in the old place. It's been deadly lonesome, and there have been times when I thought I couldn't stand it longer. Do you remember the afternoon that you and your Aunt Polly sat on my porch? Since that day I knew that I just had to strike oil. And a week ago I did, and now I'm going to spend my time doing all those things that I've missed for so many years, and, among other things, I'm going to learn to dance. I know all about 'standing pat,' Leila."

He came closer. "I'm going to New York in a couple of days to settle up about some contracts. I wonder if you—could go—that quickly, dear."

A slim white arm stole about his neck.

"I could go now," she whispered.

It was many days before Gladys Donohue or Vivian Branford ventured upon the campus, and "cutting" is now much frowned upon at Blakemore.—New York Press.

SAILOR VICTIM OF SHARK

Reminiscence of Member of Crew of the Kearsarge More Than Fifty Years Ago.

In the summer of 1862 I was serving on board the U. S. S. Kearsarge and we were at Algeciras, Spain, near Gibraltar, where the Confederate steamer Sumter lay under the guns of the fortress. It was our mission to watch the Sumter night and day to prevent her from getting out on the high sea.

One hot Sunday afternoon all our boats but one were ashore with a goodly number of officers and men, who had gone ashore to witness a bull fight. Shortly after they had left the ship the quartermaster, Charles Butts, an old whaleman, reported what he thought might be a sunfish or shark lazily disporting itself in the waters near the ship. Suddenly the old whaling instinct came to him and he got permission to take our only remaining cutter with a volunteer crew and shark irons, and they were soon away from the ship in pursuit of the big fish.

About this time some of the men wished to take a plunge in the sea, and after getting permission from Deck Officer Danforth, the port swinging boom was lowered away and some twenty men jumped overboard. One of the first men to jump into the sea was Jacob Barth of East Boston. An expert swimmer and diver, he jumped into the sea from the starboard cathead, making a great splash and commotion in the water. The boat was now several hundred yards from the ship.

Suddenly a great cry of "A shark!" went up from the men in the water, and they all struggled as hard as they could to get to the boom.

One poor fellow, Tibbetts, a Maine boy, was pursued and caught by the fish and carried out of sight toward the bottom. The water there is very clear and one can see down to a great depth, but not to the bottom. I should say the fish was sixteen feet long, of a bluish tint. I saw him seize the man, and to do so he must have bitten him. The man's white body ranged alongside of the dark body of the fish going toward the bottom at an angle of about forty-five degrees, striking with his fist, and when last seen was perhaps thirty or forty feet from the surface, a sight one will not soon forget. The men and officers of the Kearsarge considered this big fish to be a man-eating shark, and so did the natives of that locality.—Letter to the New York Sun.

Rain Was Like Reddish Mud.

A curious phenomenon has been witnessed at Gibraltar.

Lurid coppery masses of cloud suddenly shrouded the sky over the Rock and Bay, after which a heavy shower of rain, the color of reddish mud, fell, leaving a pinkish stain in many parts of the town.

It is conjectured that a sandstorm in the neighboring African wilds had gathered the particles into the air, and that these meeting with the humid atmosphere round the Rock and a drop in temperature, fell in rain.

A yellow rainstorm has since been experienced and vessels arriving here report having noted the same phenomenon.

The inhabitants of Gibraltar depend upon rain water for drinking purposes, and concern is expressed regarding the sediment in the tanks.

For the Sewing Room.

When scissors become dull, put a pin between the blades and rub it up and down, working the blades as in cutting. This will put a new edge on the scissors and takes but a moment's time.

If one likes to have her towels marked, but has not the time to embroider them nor the money to spend on handwork, the sewing machine shops, where one has machine hemstitching done will embroider a monogram or initials by machine for 10 or 15 cents each, and, as each letter is stuffed as in the handwork, when carefully laundered and ironed on a blanket, the effect is quite as good as of handwork. Of course, the towel must be marked before giving it to the shop.

SOMETHING for the LITTLE ONES

WHERE OUR FLAGS ARE MADE

Work Is Done Mostly by Women, Though Few Men May Cut Out Stars and Do the Finishing.

In the Equipment building at the New York navy yard there is a large manufactory, where most of the flags of our navy are made. A large vessel carries 40 American flags, and a smaller vessel almost as many. This does not include the fleet and international signal flags, and the flags of other countries.

There are rooms in the Equipment building that are given up to flag-making. One of these is very large, and the others at either end are much smaller. There are sewing machines, scissors, pincushions and flat-irons scattered around, so that the place does not look unlike a patriotic dressmaker's establishment. The flags are all made by women, though a few men help to cut out the stars and do the finishing. The wind and weather destroy flags so fast, and new vessels are put into commission so rapidly, that it is necessary to employ a number of people even in time of peace.

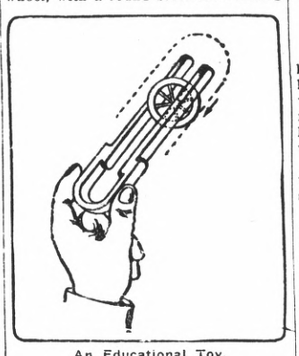

The working hours, during the late war, were extended from eight o'clock in the morning to five o'clock in the evening. In one week 1,800 flags were made at the flag department, and this was when the rush of work was about over. The women cut all the square flags and the devices for them. The men cut the stars and bias pennants, and put on the finishing touches and the heading through which the rope runs. They also put in the rope, and stencil the flag with the size and nationality.

There is a pattern for every flag, and the patterns are put away in paper bags when not in use. There are 44 flags in a set of general signals used in the navy. These are in three sizes, while the regular flag is made in nine sizes. The largest flag measures 36 feet long, while the smallest is only 30 inches. Pennants are made up to 70 feet long. There are 19 international signal flags and 43 foreign flags, which are made at the navy yard.—Scientific American.

LITTLE TOY IS EDUCATIONAL

through it for an axle, rests upon this axle on the poles of the magnet, which form an endless track for it. The wheel, of course, is made light enough that the attraction of the magnet keeps it from falling off, yet the wheel can roll about easily on what is practically an endless track. To a child this toy brings home more forcibly than any lecture by his school teacher the power and principle of magnetism, and he will delight in "fooling" his friends with it. The uninitiated will naturally expect the wheel to roll off the arms of the horseshoe and will be amazed to see it merely roll down the ends and back on the under side.

Occasion for Pride.

Dorothy, Delia and Daisy, three youngsters of a New Jersey town, were discoursing about the baby brothers who had taken up their residence in the three families during the last year.

"My little brother Tom's got a lovely silver mug that grandfather just sent him," said Dorothy. "It's a beauty, and he had a silver knife and fork from grandma, too."

"My little brother Harry's got a beautiful carved rattle that Uncle Dick sent him from Japan," said Delia. "It's the prettiest rattle that I ever saw."

"My little brother Willie's not as big as your brothers," said Daisy, with an air of endeavoring to conceal a feeling of triumph, "but the doctor says he's had more spasms than any other baby in the whole neighborhood, so there!"—Lippincott's.

SWINGING A PENDULUM

Articles Needed for Trick Are Easily Picked Up.

With Little Practice Anyone Can Become Skilled Medium—It Is Only Necessary to Move the Table That Is in Use Slightly.

To swing a pendulum, picked out from a number of them at random, without touching it is a very puzzling trick. The articles necessary are a medium-sized table and a number of pendulums, some of which are suspended from a rod with their lower weighted ends inside of water and wine glasses placed on the table, and others attached to corks so that they will hang inside of bottles.

The spectators gather around the table, which can be in full light, writes James A. Hart of Philadelphia in the Popular Mechanics. The performer sits at one side of the table with his hands flat on the top. A person may pick out any pendulum and ask him to swing it, which he will proceed to do without touching it, also making it strike the glass while it swings. Another pendulum may be pointed out and he will start that one apparently by looking at it, while the other one stops.

Any One Pendulum Can Be Made to Swing at Will by Moving the Table Slightly.

This may seem to be impossible, yet it is very easy. It will be seen that no two pendulums have the same length. A pendulum makes a certain number of swings in a given time, depending on its length. A long pendulum requires more time to complete its swing and will, therefore, make a less number of swings than a short one in the same time. It is only necessary to move the table slightly and watch the pendulum picked out until it begins to swing independently of the others, which soon happens. To make the longer pendulums swing, longer movements of the table top must be made. With a little practice anyone can become a skilled medium in pendulum swinging.

BIRD'S NEST CHANGED ROAD

Thousands of Men, Horses and Wagons Turned Aside to Avoid Doing Harm to Songster's Home.

Some years ago, Gen. David S. Stanley of the United States army was leading a force across the plains. He was laying out the route for a great railroad. There were 2,000 men, 2,500 horses and mules and a train of 250 wagons heavily laden.

One day the general was riding at the head of the broad column, when suddenly his voice rang out, "Halt!"

A bird's nest lay on the ground directly in front of him. In another moment the horses would have trampled on the nestlings. The mother bird was flying about and chirping in the greatest anxiety. But the brave general had not brought out his army to destroy a bird's nest.

He halted for a moment, looked at the little birds in the nest below, and then gave the order. "Left oblique!"

Men, horses, mules and wagons turned aside, and spared the home of helpless bird. Months, and even years after, those who crossed the plains saw a great bend in the trail. It was the bend made to avoid crushing the bird's nest.—Young People's Paper.

His Reason.

Once when Phillips Brooks was recovering from a rather severe illness he ordered that no one whatsoever be admitted to see him. One fine day Robert G. Ingersoll called and the bishop requested that he be admitted and brought to the sickroom at once.

"I certainly appreciate this," said the mystified Ingersoll, when he had shaken hands with the reverend gentleman, "but why see me when you deny yourself to your friends?"

"It is this way," responded the bishop. "I feel confident of seeing my friends in the next world, but this may be my last chance of seeing you!"

Harry Lauder has been preaching in London. Arthur Bouchier, in a surplice, has been leading a choir. Sir Herbert Tree addressed last month a Salvation Army reunion.

Apropos of these significant facts, Henry E. Dixey said the other day:

"The actor's status has indeed changed. When I was a youngster we stage folk didn't cut much ice. At least the laity thought we didn't.

"I remember once, playing in a large company. I visited a village town hall with our manager.

"'How many dressing rooms have you got?' the manager asked the janitor of the hall.

"'Two,' was the reply.

"'Only two?' the manager cried. 'Why, I've got to have one dressing room for my star, and there are 30 ladies and gentlemen in the company who must also be provided for.'

"'Well,' said the janitor, 'let the star use one dressing room and give the ladies and gentlemen the other.'

"'But,' said the manager, 'how can 30 ladies and gentlemen dress together?'

"'Why,' said the janitor, 'what's the matter with them? Don't they speak?'"

Now there is an improved pail, square in shape, with a small tin tray which fits into the top. A FRIEND TO THE WORKINGMAN

Five years ago I was so troubled with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder that I had to lease working my farm. Life looked dark to me until I heard of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root through a cured friend. I tried a bottle and began to feel better at once. After using five or six bottles I felt fine and have continued to work as I had before my affliction.

I want to state that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a kidney medicine that will cure and I owe my good work during the past five or six years to it.

Yours very truly,

Ended Life's Troubles.

A pathetic story of poverty and privation was unfolded at Paris the other day, by the discovery in the Seine of the bodies of two young women clasped in one another's arms. They were soon identified as the two eldest daughters of a bookkeeper named Brucker, who had informed the police that the girls were missing, together with a boy aged fifteen and another girl aged eight. On rising to go to work in the morning, Brucker, who is a widower, was overwhelmed to find his children's beds empty and a sheet of paper on the mantelpiece bearing the words, "We are going to drown ourselves." The bodies of the two younger children have not yet been recovered, but the unhappy father has no doubt that they, too, threw themselves into the river. The elder girls were aged twenty-three and nineteen years respectively. The family lived close to the Seine at Auteuil, and the children apparently had gone down to the river in their night clothes only. The father had received notice to leave his flat, and was to have moved out the same day. The girls had only secured casual work recently, and were worn out after passing the summer on one meal a day.

Ask for S. S. S. and Don't Stand for the "Just as Good" Talk.

When a man has the short change game worked on him, he makes a noise that brings the Police, and yet that same man may walk into a store and have the "Just as good" game worked on him and tamely submit. Why stand for it? The only reason why any store will try to substitute something else for S. S. S. is the lust for greater profit. S. S. S. is the greatest blood purifier known.

There is not a medicine for any purpose more carefully made than S. S. S. It represents the highest type of medicine. Its medical properties are just as essential to well balanced health, if the blood be sick, as are the nourishing elements of meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food. S. S. S. is prepared direct from native botanical material. Not a drop of drugs is added. Not a drop of minerals is used. This is one of the most important things to know and to remember when your blood needs attention.

It is the most effective, the purest, the quickest and most reliable medicine known for poisoned blood, rheumatism, catarrhal infection, malaria, skin disease, old sores and all afflictions that show in the blood, skin, joints and muscles.

An interesting book on the blood is mailed to those who write. Get a bottle of S. S. S. today. It is the world's greatest medicine. Insist upon the dealer handing you S. S. S. and don't let him prate about something that he can't advertise as free from iodide of potash and other destructive mineral drugs.

If you have trouble getting S. S. S. write to The Swift Specific Co., 206 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for list of square deal stores.

"For the cause that lacks assistance,
Against the wrong that needs resistance,
For the future in the distance,
And the good that we can do."

"Jack Frost" held the boards this morning.

When you want a tip on future weather, consult one of Professor Ricard's sun-spots.

"The worst is yet to come" for Tveitmoe. He is to be tried in Los Angeles where his "friend" Otis lives.

Bankers who were so noisy when the currency bill became a law and predicted a panic, are not saying much now.

Taxpayers usually assume that all public money is legitimately spent. The question is: How much of it is legitimately wasted?

Governor Johnson could not have pleased the people of California better. They want him to succeed himself as governor. He is the right man in the right place.

The Municipal Street railway of San Francisco that "would never pay," according to private ownership statements, has cleared over a quarter of a million dollars, and the enterprise is in its infancy.

Some one said: "Yes, he is an agitator," and thereby formed his opinion. The straw calls the threshing machine an "agitator." President Wilson is called an agitator by certain interests. The agitator is a necessary "evil."

It is claimed that the first aid to the taxpayer is publicity. Publicity brings efficiency and economy in local government. The question is general in California cities: "Can the California tax burden skeleton be kept in the closet much longer?"

Barry's Star says: "As long as we have in California that survival of feudal times known as polltax, why not compel polltax payers to wear rings in their ears, and attach to the rings metal polltax receipts? Good idea. Then we could "spot" the dodgers.

The question of the referendum to disfranchise voters who may not be taxpayers, in matters of exercising their franchise on all public questions concerning money expenditures, is not constitutional. It seems reasonable that non-tax paying voters would not vote for heavy bonds and increase tax burdens, causing high rentals. The consumer pays the freight, and would not vote against his own interest. The question obviously settles itself automatically.

Snpervisor Warren H. McBryde has suggested a practical plan to relieve destitute families who are the victims of delinquent husbands and fathers. Instead of jailing the culprit who "renigs" on supporting his family, give him employment in improving county roads at $2.00 per day, the county to turn the pay envelope over to the man's family. The board agreed with Mr. McBryde that his plan was a good one, and it looks like the delinquent heads of families who are dodging their responsibilities would have employment in the near future.

James H. Barry, editor of the San Francisco Star, gave his "Good Cheer Dinner" just the same this year, notwithstanding the "depression." Two hundred guests surrounded the tables at the "Poodle Dog." Numerous messages of regrets were received from those who could not attend, a telegram from Secretary of the Interior Lane, who attended these annual dinners when residing in San Francisco. Telegrams were received from Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan, Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell, Congressman J. E. Raker, Henry George, Jr., and others.

That Register Story.

The story that County Clerk Wells refused to register voters as "Progressives" is unfounded. Clerk Wells is following the letter of the law, and denies that he requires the word "Progressive" to carry the affix "Republican," viz: "Progressive Republican."

IF HE PAID IN ADVANCE.

[With apologies to that pastoral classic "The Old Oaken Bucket."]

How dear to our heart
Is the steady subscriber,
Who pays in advance
At the birth of each year;
Who lays down the money
And does it quite gladly,
And casts 'round the office
A halo of cheer.

He never says "Stop it;
I cannot afford it—
I'm getting more papers
Now than I can read."
But always says "Send it
Our people all like it—
In fact, we all think
The Terminal is a need."

How welcome his check
When it reaches our sanctum,
How it makes our pulse throb,
How it makes our heart dance;
We outwardly thank him,
We inwardly bless him—
The steady subscriber
Who pays in advance.

Berkeley Women To Reduce Cost of Living

School Kiddies Will Be Trained To Raise Spuds and Garden Truck.

BERKELEY, Cal., January 9 — How to raise berries and garden vegetables in January as in summer and to cut the price in half during winter and early spring, will be some of the things taught to school children of Berkeley, if plans for gardens inaugurated by the federation of mothers' clubs are carried out. Vacant lots near the various schools will be utilized. This plan is carried out successfully in the east and north and has proved a solar plexus for the high cost of living. Instead of consumers paying ten cents each for cucumbers and ten cents per head for lettuce, the price will be cut in two. The promoters of the Berkeley school gardens claim that there is more than enough vacant land in every municipality in California to supply the demands of households with fresh vegetables at a nominal cost, and that their plan is one that will help solve the problem of getting rid of the parasities who are exacting exorbitant profits from the consumer and causing distress in many households.

Accidents During 1913.

Health Commissioner Blake has made the following report of accidents and their cause, for 1913: Trains 6, explosions 6, automobile 3, defective machinery 3, wagon 1, total 19.

Of the 19 avoidable deaths, six of them were due to railroad accidents, six to explosives through somebody's mistake at Oleum and Giant, three to faulty machinery and three to reckless automobile driving. The electric cars and manufacturing plants of the city have been noticeably free from accidents.

In the Shadow.

Johnny Morris has left us. Column rules have been turned, eulogies pronounced and hundreds of words spoken and printed, but Johnny cannot hear or read them. Life is surely an uncertain quantity and the sudden taking away of this young man has cast a pall over the printshops of Richmond. Johnny Morris was beloved by all.

School Bonds.

Saturday, January 31st is the day set by the board of education to vote on $150,000 school bonds to be expended in new buildings and additions. As Richmond is in need of school buildings to keep apace with the rapid growth, it is predicted the bonds will have little opposition.
